Drawing & Painting Birds

Watercolor:

Watercolor Paints- I primarily use Daniel Smith watercolors. They recently became available in stores, but can also be purchased online at: They offer 250+ shades. I recommend the following colors to start:

1. Ultramarine blue
2. Cerulean blue.
3. Permanent yellow deep
4. Hansa yellow light
5. Permanent red
6. Quinacridone rose
7. Yellow ochre
8. Burnt sienna
9. Pthalo blue

If you already a good assortment of watercolors you DO NOT need to purchase this list. It is only my recommendation for those who do not currently own watercolors and wish to work with them in this workshop. Other good quality watercolor manufacturers are Winsor Newton, Smincke, Da Vinci and M.Graham

Special Note about watercolor paper:

It has come to my attention that the Fabriano Watercolor Paper that I have been using for years has been changed by the manufacturer and it no longer reacts the same way. I am now recommending Lanaquarelle. It comes in full sheets and blocks. Both formats are acceptable. The other old standby that a lot of artists use is Arches. I personally have never liked the paper but I know very successful artists that do fantastic work on it. You can also check out Cheap Joe's as they have sample packs of watercolor paper. This is a great way to explore and experiment with different papers without a huge investment. If you don't like the samples you won't have a stock pile of it!

Watercolor Brushes – I use synthetic as well as sable watercolor brushes. My choice is a shorter stiffer bristle brush as I find it easier to control.

I use the Round #10

The smaller brushes like the 1 or 2 are too long for me and I prefer a shorter length in the bristles.

Chisel:- I personally have not used this brush but it looks close to what I work with. I would go with a 2 or 4
